

ESSAYS AND STUDIES

VOL. L MARCH 2000

- Pluralistic Theory of Mind and Problems of the Self
Osamu HAMAI [1]
- Why Should Life Be the Highest Good?
—Toward the Genealogy of Humanism— Ichirō MORI [29]
- Tatsuzō Ishikawa's View of the Japan-China War that Appears in His Novel "Ikiteiru Heitai," or "The Surviving Soldiers"
Yoshihiko SHIRAISHI [67]
- "Rangyoku-Zoroe" and "Michiyuki-Zukushi" as Early
"Danmonoshū" of Kaganojō Wakana SAKAI [95]
- Revisiting the Siloam Inscription Akio MORIYA [117]
- Religious Aspects from LM III Cemetery of Armenoi in Post-Palatia Crete Yoshie TANIMIZU [135]
- A Symphony of Echoing Voices Absalom, Absalom!
Kiyoko TōYAMA [161]
- Darkness Gazing and Gazed: The Darkness in Joseph
Conrad's Heart of Darkness Kazuko MATSUMOTO [177]
- Learner Development in the Context of the Japanese
EFL Classroom Keith FORD [201]
- The Japanese University Setting: Implications for Teaching
Communicative Competency Meredith E. HINTON [213]
- The Impact of Perceived Humor and Repeated Exposure
on the Effects of Advertising Jina E [231]
- Education and Public Economics Taeko Tsubonuma [249]
- Hidden Social Control and Gender
—From Bernstein to Arnot— Mutsuko TENDō [275]
- Résumé [293]
-

Published by

TOKYO WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY
TOKYO JOSHI DAIGAKU